"Yurt, Sweet Yurt" - Photo and sentiment by Eric Williams

Happy Winter, friends!

What I'm learning about yurt life is this - The central component, indeed the key element to happiness, a

I she's not happy, nobody's happy. And that's the goddamn truth.

But I've got the rhythm now, and I must confess I'm very happy.

It's been snowing since I arrived, and that's a charming contrast to the 70 degree weather of southern N

For once my mind is in the same place as my body, and time is passing smoothly. It's as though someone

I was making soup in the kitchen one evening while the long light of the short day lay like chicken broth

And for once I wasn't crying from the onion.

It's just that simple things please me.

I'm headed to Denver in a few days to play two shows, and then to the east coast for the briefest of visits

The rhythm I've found is movement, and I'm just beginning my spinning. I'm not sure where or how I'll land

You can find me on February 15th in Coal Creek Canyon for a Valentine's Weekend show. I'm really looking

February 21st Brodie and I will perform at the Mercury Cafe in downtown Denver. This time Brodie will open

If you're East Coast based, catch Dave Kaye and I giving a guest set at Walrus & Carpenter on Wed, Feb

See you soon!

In Joy,

Gabrielle Louise
